The Masonic Order Will Build Temple

The Masonic building association of this city has purchased property and will erect a masonic temple at an early date. The triangle opposite Gross, Kelly & Co., and the M. B. Goldenberg Co. is the site selected. The building will face Main and Third and will be three stories high, the material to be either coke braze or brick. The Main street front will be 75 feet and the third street front 47 feet. There will be three business houses on the first floor and the upstairs will be for Masonic and Elks lodges and their club rooms. This is going to be among the very best equipped temples in the southwest and will have every equipment to be had for the amount of money the Order intends to spend in the erection and furnishing of the building. The cost not to mention the furnishing will be about $11,000.00. This amount of stock has already been sold and the only thing remaining is to assign contract, bids for which will be advertised in a few days.

When He Saw Her Face.

A traveling man brings this one out from N'Yawk. A friend of his, it seems, started down the long flight of steps in front of the Metropolitan Art Museum. He was carrying a slight bun at the time. Two steps below him was a lady whose fine-looking figure made him think that she ought to have an equally handsome face. In his hurry to investigate, his feet slipped and he fell with a heavy bump. Then things commenced to happen. The fall caused him to hit the lady ahead and she just naturally sat on his lap, and thus the two slid down to the bottom of the steps. It was there that he got the first glimpse of the lady's face. The sight sobered him instantly, and incidentally on the way down he had begun to realize that the figure was not what it seemed. So, when the lady exhibited no signs of wanting to get up, he said courteously, but firmly: "Pardon me, madam, but this is as far as I go."—Ex.

The Admirals Verdict.

One Sunday "Fighting Bob" Evans dropped into an exclusive church in N'Yawk. A dapper little usher tried to turn him into a rear seat, but the admiral ignored him and limped right on up the aisle. When he came to a pew that looked alright to him, he sat down. An elderly gentleman with an extremely sanctified cast of countenance, who was sitting in the pew turned a heavy scowl in his direction, but the admiral merely grinned at a good-looking soprano in the choir. Finally the elderly party scribbled something on a card and handed it to him. The message said: "I pay $1,500 a year for the exclusive use of this pew." The admiral read this. Then he gazed critically at the pew and the man, turned and carefully studied the church interior, and finally took out a pencil and wrote on the card: "You pay to dammuchi."—Book of Smiles
